Exeter, UK, Oct 01, 2007 – TCL's progress towards its 2020 goal of becoming a world wide, world class centre of testing excellence received recognition this week in the Sunday Times Microsoft Tech Track 100.

Since inception in 2000, TCL has consistently driven towards the goal of becoming a world wide, world class centre of testing excellence by 2020.

The progress that the company has made so far was recognised this week through the inclusion in the Sunday Times Microsoft Tech Track 100.

Placed at number 47 in the league table, TCL demonstrated an 85% year on year growth in revenues between 2004 and 2006.

This growth was made organically, and on the basis of assignments within the UK and Europe. In 2006 and 2007 the company has further expanded its operations into both the US and India.

Tony Prosser, Co-founder and Director of Delivery said: "I am delighted by the inclusion of TCL in the Tech Track 100. We've dreamed of the day we would make it, and it's a tremendous accolade for the team."

Stewart Noakes, Co-founder and Chairman of TCL Group, said: "Inclusion in the tech track 100 is a superb reflection of the rapid progress we have made in developing TCL as a sustainable, innovative and customer focussed company. We are the only [pure play] software testing company in the listing and I think it shows just how different we are in thinking long term, having a global vision for our industry, and above all in putting our people first."
