

The Vision for TCL: Bringing the people to the front of the Brand

New look website brings the TCL people to the front of the Brand

Exeter, UK, Oct 01, 2007 – Transition Consulting Limited (TCL) is delighted to announce the launch of its new look website, designed to bring its people to the front of its brand.

On 22nd September 2007, TCL launched a new look website, which has been designed specifically to highlight the people that make the company such a unique place to work.

The website is part of a wider programme of work to 'Bring the People to the front of the Brand', which is a key initiative in the company for 2007/08.

Within the website, visitors can see pictures and profile information on a variety of people in the company including consultants, managers and directors.

Grant Obermaier, Website Project Manager said: "I would like to thank Timothy Creswick of Thoughtspace (www.thoughtspace.co.uk) and Dave Watts of Sound In Theory (www.soundintheory.com), who have done a marvellous job and really worked with us to ensure that the site is to the highest standard. Further thanks go to all of our Employees who have managed to find the time to support the testing of the site."

Stewart Noakes, Chairman of TCL Group, said: "The site is amazing! It does a fantastic job of celebrating what makes us so very different from other consultancies – our people."
